Director's Report

Renovation Update

Just in waiting mode ; asbestos & lead testing is happening. There will be a pre-construction meeting called soon. No word yet from the DOA on the final grant announcement, but they are proceeding as planned with approvals having not been directed by anyone or entity that the FFP funding is or will be restricted.

Moving

We are in our temporary space and I am very happy to say things went swimmingly! Thanks for all the support, lunch and treats. The librarians are all pretty tired and we've been hit with the flu, but mostly it is working out.

Personnel

Considering hiring a page. We do have funds in the budget. Let's discuss at the meeting.

On the Horizon

All things construction. I will be setting up a team within PW staff, myself and the architects to monitor progress on site. We'll probably be walking through weekly or something like that.

Book Recommendation

Looking for some engaging short stories? The author of Rules of Civility and A Gentleman in Moscow has a great collection, Table for Two: Fictions. His writing is concise but descriptive and really transports one to the scene the characters are interacting within. There's a little bit of noir, some caddish behavior and Evelyn Ross is a character you'll want to hang out with in LA around 1926.
